Plans to reopen schools

Wake County looking to start schools Aug. 17

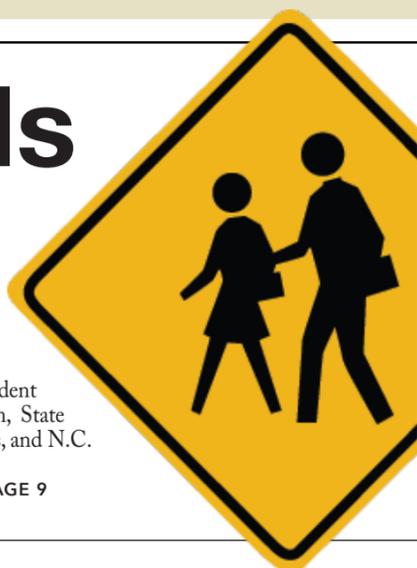

FROM WSJ STAFF REPORTS

New health guidelines released last week give three scenarios under which schools are to be prepared to open in August for traditional calendar. The guidelines represent a first step to help North Carolina K-12 public schools find a safe way to open to in-person instruction for the 2020-21 academic year, health and education leaders announced.

A planned beginning date for school to resume in Wake County is Aug. 17. The StrongSchoolsNC Public Health Toolkit (K-12) lays out a comprehensive set of baseline health practices that public schools should follow to minimize risk of exposure to COVID-19 for students, staff, and families. In addition to specific requirements, the Toolkit recommends practices that schools should implement to minimize spread of COVID-19 while allowing in-person teaching to resume.

Virus cases spike

BY KATHY HARRELSON FOR THE WSJ

North Carolina is among the 19 states in the country that is experiencing a spike in Coronavirus cases, according to a national report released Monday, and Wake County is among the top nine counties in the state where cases are surging.

The N.C. update came after an active weekend of case reports. N.C. Gov. Roy Cooper said during a Monday Coronavirus briefing that he will announce early next week about whether the state will move into a progressive reopening phase or if the state will need to look at maintaining or tightening restrictions.

As this decision lingers, Wake County commissioners decided not to make masks/face coverings mandatory (like in Durham and Orange counties), leaving the decision to cities and towns, and Wake County Schools discussed Monday night the path back to safe schools under the guidelines issued by the state in the form of three scenarios of readiness.

Wake Forest Mayor Vivian Jones said Tuesday that the town will follow restrictions on mandatory face coverings set forth by the state.

Cooper cited the current metrics, which he and Department of Health and Human Services Secretary Dr. Mandy Cohen both said are moving in the wrong direction. All metrics being evaluated are on the increase.

"Let's press to make sure we can flatten that curve," he said.

Both Cohen and Cooper said public social distancing, wearing masks and washing hands can lend a great deal to lessening the spread of the virus. Cooper said he and other state leaders are actively discussing whether cloth face coverings should be mandatory in public across the state.

On Monday, June 15, there were 45,102 confirmed cases of COVID-19 in North Carolina; 797 hospitalizations; 1,118 deaths. Twenty-two percent of ICU beds are available, and 27 percent of inpatient beds are available. Tuesday hospitalizations spiked to 829.

"I know we see things going in the wrong direction, but if we act collectively, we can take control of our fate here," Cohen said. "I know folks want to move

WF demonstrates in peace as other towns see rage, hostility

BY KATHY HARRELSON FOR THE WSJ

As many towns and cities were seeing hostile protests and rioting, the messages of love, peace, unity and understanding lofted through the warm-wind, blown trees in a lot off Taylor Street.

A few more than 100 people of all ages gathered June 7 in the space for the first of what is expected to be many demonstrations by the community for racial justice and equality in the wake of George Floyd's killing in Minneapolis and subsequent revivals of police brutality since.

"We are here, come together, as churches of all denominations to speak out about racial barriers," said Pastor Tony Harris of Greater New Life Fellowship Community Church. "It is time for community change. We are here to make sure everything is done in decency and the Wake Forest Northeast Community Coalition and leader and icon Tilda Caudle. Singer Mable Jeffreys performed as organizers handed out helium balloons to be released in honor each for a person who may have endured racial injustice or in the memory of Floyd.

Wall-Lennon commended Alston, Hockaday and Deonna for their leadership and said she is happy to see youth in the community trying to make a difference for good.

In reference to "Black Lives Matter," Wall-Lennon emphasized, "We never said only 'Black Lives Matter.' We know all lives matter," she said, noting that the black community needs its allies to stand with it.

She warned against being taken in by hatred at this time.

"We must make sure that the hatred does not seep inside of us," she said.

Two dead bodies were found in a vehicle in the parking lot of the Wakefield Crossing Shopping Center, off of Falls of the Neuse Road. Raleigh police were called to the shopping center at 8:05 a.m. Friday morning and found two adults dead. Residents of a surrounding neighborhood said they heard two gun shots about the time the police said the incident was reported. The investigation continues and no other information has been released.

Wake Forest reopens athletic parks

FROM WSJ STAFF REPORTS

On June 8, the Wake Forest Parks, Recreation & Cultural Resources Department opened all Town-maintained athletic fields at all Town parks, except Flaherty Park Field #3 which is closed for maintenance. The fields, which have been closed due to COVID-19, will be available for rent beginning Monday, June 15.

These amenities are not sanitized daily, and visitors must use at their own risk. In addition, all users must follow group size (25 max) and social distancing guidelines.

Community health and safety is the top priority for the Town of Wake Forest. The situation surrounding COVID-19 continues to evolve, so the Town's athletic fields are subject to close with limited notice. Wake Forest oficials will continue to closely monitor updates and follow guidelines from the Wake County Health Department, N.C. Department of Health and Human Services and the Centers for Disease Control. These guidelines have been implemented in protocols established by the town to address potential exposure to the coronavirus and protect our community and staff.

Out of concern for public safety, PRCR offices and buildings, including Joyner Park Community Center, Flaherty Park Community Center, Wake Forest Community House and Alston-Massenburg Center, remain closed to the public. A limited number of programs are being offered at these facilities, so only registered participants are allowed to enter.

In addition, playgrounds remain closed and drinking fountains are turned off.

Two car collision

On June 6, Wake Forest Fire Department's Engine 4, Ladder 1, and Battalion 2 were dispatched to a traffic accident on Purnell Road. Battalion 2 arrived to a two car head on-collision. A total of four patients were transported by EMS to the hospital. Conditions of the patients are unknown. No other information has been released.

FROM WSJ STAFF REPORTS

Northern Community Food Security Team Chair Andrew Brown, Jr. announced the Northern Regional Center, 350 E. Holding Ave., will continue serving as a weekday food distribution site through Friday, July 31. Until then, parents and caretakers of students ages 18 and younger can continue to pick up free, nutritious meals Monday-Friday from 11 a.m.-1 p.m. as part of Wake County's Summer Nutrition Program. Distributed curbside at the NRC, the food is placed in safe and sanitized containers to minimize concerns related to the spread of COVID-19. Brown also reminded residents about the NCFST's Weekend Meals Program. Offered Fridays at the NRC from 11 a.m.-1 p.m. (rain or shine), the initiative invites families to pick up enough food to sustain them through the weekend. Thanks to the NCFST's network of partners, a variety of foods are available at no cost, including dairy, poultry, fruits, vegetables and shelf staples (peanut butter, pasta, oatmeal, cereal, canned goods and nuts).

"Our efforts would not be possible without the support we receive from our incredible partners," said Brown. "These partners include Farmer's Foodshare, Backpack Buddies, Bread of Life Ministries, Tri-Area Ministries, Fresh Point Produce, and Inter-Faith Food Shuttle."

Contributed To WSJ
From The Town of Wake Forest

The Town of Wake Forest and Wake Forest Downtown, Inc. are looking to stimulate our downtown economy and reward residents who are supporting downtown businesses during the COVID-19 pandemic. To achieve these goals, from June 13-July 5, a special incentive is being offered to people who shop at participating stores.

As part of "Red, White & Blue - Downtown Wake Forest Needs You," for every $25 a customer spends at one of the following downtown businesses, he or she will receive a raffle ticket to be entered into a weekly drawing:

- B & W Hardware, Co.
- Bella Music
- Nancy Jo Photography
- Next Consignment
- North Carolina General Stores
- Page 158 Books
- Record Crate
- Renegade Motorcycle
- Southern Suds & Gifts
- Sweeties Candy Shop

- The Cotton Company
- The Lemon Tree
- Sugar Magnolia Café (purchases of alcohol are not eligible)
- Unwined on White (purchases of alcohol are not eligible)
- Wake Forest Art & Frame
- Wake Forest Coffee Company

Over those four weeks (June 13-July 5), $1,500 in Downtown Dollars will be given away with the grand prize winner receiving $500.

Drawings will be held on the following Wednesdays: June 17, June 24, July 1 and July 8. Winners will be announced on the Wake Forest Downtown Facebook and Instagram pages.

Downtown Dollars can be used the same as cash. To learn more about Downtown Dollars and view a list of downtown merchants who accept them, visit www.wakeforestdowntown.com/downtowndollars/.

When you shop local, more of your money helps the local economy. For every dollar you spend at locally-owned businesses, 68 cents are reinvested into the community. For more information, email Downtown Development Program Specialist Jennifer Herbert at jherbert@wakeforestnc.gov.

EDITORIAL

Amidst the fire, smoke rises “Our WF Matters”

The country is three weeks into a dark pit of protests, demonstrations, riots, looting, police shootings and killings and protester injuries and deaths.

It has been several weeks that have shocked most people, caused much concern and debate about racial equality and lack of it in our communities.

The time, in the midst of a worldwide health crisis with the Coronavirus, has proven both stressful yet necessary.

We don't always get conflict when expected in this country. Our citizenry hands it to us as our sins multiply and our endurance runs thin.

In just a short few weeks we have seen the genuine character of many people who have varied perspectives on the impetus for the protesting and subsequent violence. The death of George Floyd in Minneapolis was not just one more death of a black man at the hands of unjust police brutality. The murder unleashed the internal burning of black souls for justice and then fueled the flame of a voice that cried from all Americans in one way or another in a united realization of “Enough.” Enough hatred. Enough violence. Enough discrimination. Enough division.

Even the peaceful words of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. — his face in graffiti along the nation's highways and capital city walls with fires in the backgrounds and looting in the foregrounds — took on a deeper meaning when recited over the last few weeks, as if this country should ever have to look back relative to race relations and be retaught those lessons of simple humanity. But we do.

We have so much more to understand and overcome. In many ways we as people became complacent in our relationships and stood back to let laws and courts and politicians decide what is right and wrong for us in race relations.

In as much as we have progressed — racial inequality is palpable. It is harsh. It is real. It is wrong.

During the Wake Forest demonstration and march last week, the pain was heard in voices of members of our town's black community who called to the table decades still of job discrimination based on skin color or based on the way a name sounds; ownerships of small business but not in commercial development and investments; educational inequities and even choices of hair styles in the workplace.

So very much unlike many of the demonstrations/protests we have witnessed in recent weeks, the local effort embraced peace, awareness and love, and it did it in the powerful strength of true need and honesty.

The voices were mighty, and the messages were stern on the streets as they aligned together in numbers of 100 or more and chanted.

The local effort was put together by three incredible young women — Tara Alston, Shynese Hockaday and Sharrese Deonna — who undoubtedly were watching the historic uprisings and who knew they had to do something at home. They took action within days of the idea for a Wake Forest demonstration.

What they chose was to organize in a Godly presence, to open conversation, to recognize a good relationship with the Wake Forest Police Department within the black community, to reach out and to offer support and help in education and voting rights and to embrace the opportunity to peacefully reject how black lives are continually put to the side.

They said, “Black Lives Matter.”

They also said, “All Lives Matter.”

WF Commissioner Bridget Wall-Lennon left her hand and heart wide open and said the black community needs its allies now.

She is so correct. We all need each other and every ounce of love and understanding we can give. We hope the town will be prompted to reach out to “Our WF Matters” and open up discussions in the entire community about race relations and needs of modern-day that will move us forward as a solid, diverse community. But it should only be a support. We must all decide our roles and play it out successfully face-to-face daily and let truthful dialogues emerge.

No matter color, no matter feelings toward the actions of others in this raw and brutal time that have proven harmful and vile, no matter what prejudices are within any one of us — we have never in recent history had such a calling, such an opportunity to be allies — together — one nation, under God with liberty and justice for all.

We hope the pursuit of better lives within our black community can be defined and brought to the forefront of police and local leaders and of all residents of the town.

With that will come better days and ways for us all.

THE BACK FORTY

Time to hit the links

In the last edition I wrote about sharing online information sources I used in my days as a reporter. A lot of law enforcement data is online, and I used to go through it weekly to see what was up.

For instance, you can see every report filed by Wake Forest Police at <http://p2c.wakeforestnc.gov>. I used the “Event search” tab, by date reported. Expand the search parameters to a week and you'll get a real idea just how much petty crime and fender benders occur in this town. The Wake County Sheriff's Office “police-to-citizen” site is at <http://p2c.wake-so.net>. For some ungodly reason, the webpage is in reverse (black background, light text), which they probably think looks smart, but gave me splitting headaches. Since the Sheriff's Office runs the county jail, you can look up inmates — people awaiting trial — as well. Click “Filter inmate list” to do a search. To see who was recently arrested, take a gander at tiny.cc/wakearrests.

One tool for seeing crime in the area is online at <https://community-crimemap.com>. Formerly called RAIDS Online, I used to use this for Raleigh crime mapping. Raleigh is still listed but nothing shows — their police department doesn't upload this info anymore. But rural Franklin County is on it, which can be useful. To find locally registered sex offenders, use <https://sex-offender.ncsbi.gov/search.aspx>. If you don't have a specific address in mind, just type “Wake Forest” into the Offender Search bar (second from top), and hit enter, and you'll see a list of all offenders with a local address.

If you know someone who was convicted of a crime and want to check their sentence status, go to the state prison site at tiny.cc/ncpriz, and click on the first link, then search by name. One caveat — those reports can be confusing to read and understand. To find a person convicted of a federal crime, use <https://www.bop.gov/inmateloc>. You can also find someone's pre-trial court status at tiny.cc/wktrialz. Note that court dates tend to change, so just because it says John Doe is going to trial Aug. 1, doesn't mean that'll be the case, due to motions. (During the outbreak, the courts are on hold anyway.)

Another link worth bookmarking is the Wake property lookup, <http://services.wakegov.com/reaestate>. Type in an address and viola — there's a residence's build date, past owners, deed info, sale price, square footage, property photo, tax value, et al. You can search undeveloped lots this way, too, but if you don't have an address, find one in the same vicinity, then click the “map” tab, wait for it to zoom in (it can be sluggish), go to tools, and select the pointer to click neighboring properties. A field will populate on the right, and if you click the “$” sign, it'll take you to the property info pages. Good for development projects, or to figure out who actually owns a building.

There's one more site I adore. If you love town history, there's a searchable database of the Old Gold & Black, the Wake Forest University newspaper. Every issue of the paper is scanned and online. A lot of the news is about the institution, to be sure, but you do find tidbits of town news in there as well right up until the college moved in 1956. It was an invaluable resource when I was

Uneducated will not destroy country

Good morning. Well our country hasn't quite been torn apart yet, and I doubt it will, but every day it seems the uneducated are getting a firmer grasp on how we may have to live our lives from now on. I, also, doubt that lasts.

There is no room for racism or police brutality in this world. But there is also no room exploiting serious issues for political reasons, website hits or television ratings.

We have leaders, real leaders, who have intelligent thoughts to add to the conversation, but for every one of those we have others with agendas, who use misinformation and chaos to manipulate the minds of the uneducated, immoral and basic troublemakers to do their bidding for them.

I don't have the time to teach a history lesson, but I will say Robert E. Lee is arguably the greatest American soldier to ever step on a battlefield. Gen. Ulysses S. Grant, a slave owner, was a born loser who was in the right place at the right time but was able to keep it together for a few years and lead the Union to a Civil War win. The founding fathers did a great job laying the groundwork for a great nation to come. When the Declaration of Independence was written there was a long debate on the verbiage to include about slavery. Slavery lost out. A mistake.

During the growing pains of our country many mistakes have been made, and hope-

Wake Forest passes budget; town manager gets raise

BY KATHY HARRELSON FOR THE WSJ

Wake Forest commissioners have approved a budget for the upcoming fiscal year, effective July 1.

It includes a roughly 3-cent decrease in the ad valorem tax rate from 52 to 49 cents per each $100 in assessed property valuation based on an estimated tax base of $6.6 billion (Wake County) and $127 million (Franklin County).

Revenue from ad valorem taxes is projected to increase by about $4 million.

The budget takes $812,400 (70 percent less than last year) out of unrestricted reserves to balance the roughly $57 million Wake Forest general fund. The unassigned fund balance is at $11.3 million. The town has a target of keeping fund balance at 20-25 percent of the total budget.

The budget includes removing the residential solid waste fee from the tax rate and establishing a $21 user fee monthly for each user. The fee will show up on customers' water and sewer bills, beginning Jan 1, 2021. Currently, the commercial tax base is subsidizing the residential solid waste collection due to the way the costs were merged when the town merged its water and sewer system with Raleigh in 2005.

A $25 vehicle fee is included (no change) — $5 for the general fund and $20 for the debt service fund for transportation improvements debt services.

The tax rate for the Downtown Municipal Service District is 14 cents per $100 of real property valuation to generate $99,300 for improvements in the downtown district.

Fire Department

One of the largest projects for the town is making the Wake Forest Fire Department a department of town government. While the assumption had been projected to increase the tax rate as much as 3 cents, the recent revaluation of real property has made the financial impact to residents less than expected.

The largest capital expenditure for the town will be for the Fire Department — a $1.4 million aerial drawn ladder. The town will get six new positions for the Fire Department. The department is proposed to operate on $9.8 million.

About $700,000 will be received from the Fire Department as part of merging with the town, according to the budget. The town also expects Wake County to provide $1.62 million as part of a cost sharing agreement for fire coverage outside corporate limits.

With other personnel, 11 additional, staggered-hired positions were approved.

The new tax rate includes a cent and a half for transportation, an area where the anticipated tax revenues on the state level because of the virus are expected to decrease.

The cent and a half will generate $996,000 annually for a fund.

An affordable and workforce housing fund to continue initiatives through public and private partnerships was approved. A half cent will generate more than $332,000 annually, paying for a new position and supporting the initiative, which would involve developing a housing plan.

Debt service is projected at $6.8 million (12.2 percent of the general fund expenditures.). All the town's general fund debt in placed in the debt service fund. Most of the debt to repay in from the construction projections approved by voter referendum in 2014.

Closed Session

The Board of Commissioners passed a motion following a closed session on personnel to increase Town Manager Kip Padgett's salary by 7 percent to $187,727, plus pay him a car allowance of $3,500.

When the motion was made to raise the salary, Town Mayor Vivian Jones said, "I am pleased to support this increase, which is very much justified due to Kip's excellent work this year during the Covid19 pandemic."

"His job will be much more difficult this year with the addition of the Fire Department to the town. We are very pleased to have someone of his ability and quality as our town manager."

Face masks mandatory in Raleigh on Friday

FROM WSJ STAFF REPORTS

Face masks will be mandatory for people in public in Raleigh, starting 4 p.m. Friday.

Mayor Mary-Ann Baldwin amended the city's emergency order during the Coronavirus pandemic to make face coverings mandatory when social distancing in public is difficult or impossible.

The Raleigh City Council voted unanimously on Tuesday to authorize Baldwin to take the step.

Wake County has the second-highest number of Coronavirus infections in North Carolina and that the numbers are on the rise with cases and hospitalizations.

The mayor said Raleigh is working with WakeMed and Wake County to try to supply masks or other coverings to people who don't have any. Masks won't be required for children 12 and under or for people who cannot wear them because of medical or religious reasons.

Raleigh police won't be citing people for not wearing masks in public.

Wake County officials said they won't enact a county-wide requirement. Wake Forest leaders have said they will follow the state's lead on mandatory masks, and Gov. Roy Cooper said last week that the restriction is being discussed.

Simple Recycling to discontinue service

Contributed To WSJ From The Town of Wake Forest

Simple Recycling has informed the Town of Wake Forest that it will discontinue its curbside textile collection program in Wake Forest effective Friday, June 19. In a letter to Town officials, Simple Recycling identified the COVID-19 pandemic as the primary reason for its decision.

"The COVID-19 pandemic has materially changed our nation and the world at large. While the full impact and interruptions to our business are yet to be fully realized, in the immediate term, they are significant. We have been challenged to make difficult but prudent decisions to ensure the continuity of our programs in your community and at a national level.

Because of this, please accept this notification that Simple Recycling will be discontinuing our curbside textile collection program in the City of Wake Forest and our last day of service will be June 19th as we are closing our local facility."

The Town is encouraging local residents to consider the following tips when apparel, footwear and accessories are out of style, worn, stained or just no longer useful.

Pass clothing along to family or friends. Babies and children often outgrow clothes well before they are worn out.

Donate clothing. Reputable charities and thrift stores accept and sell donated clothing to help fund their activities and achieve their charitable missions. See a few local charities listed below. Approximately 20 percent of donated clothes are sold at thrift locations. The remaining 80 percent is sold to recyclers.

Additionally, the following local non-profits accept donations of clothing: GCF Donation Center & Store, Goodwill, [animalkind.org/]Retails Thrift Store, Ukay Ukay Thrift Store, Giving Tree Foundation, Helping Hand Mission, Salvation Army, Women's Center of Wake County, [nrm.pulishpath.com/thrift-shoppe] North Raleigh Ministries.

The average person throws away nearly 70 lbs. of clothing, shoes and accessories each year. By recycling these items, Wake Forest residents can keep them out of the landfill and make them available to others who can use them.

Pool opens July 1: Must pay in advance

Contributed To WSJ From The Town of Wake Forest

Delayed due to concerns about COVID-19, the opening of the Holding Park Aquatic Center will take place Wednesday, July 1, at 10 a.m. Open Swim times will be scheduled in three-hour blocks, with one hour in between to allow staff to clean and sanitize the facility, including deck chairs, door handles, hand rails and other high-touch areas.

A maximum of 120 patrons will be allowed inside the facility during each session. Patrons must register and pay for each session in advance online at <https://bit.ly/Holding-ParkAquaticCenter>. No walk-ins will be allowed.

The Wake Forest Parks, Recreation & Cultural Resources Department wants HPAC patrons to be aware of the following policies and procedures for the 2020 season:

No cash transactions will be allowed. All Open Swim patrons must pre-register and pay the user fee online in advance. This will ensure an accurate record of the number of users and assist with contact tracing efforts.

- No walk-ins will be allowed.
 - The HPAC point of entry will be marked to encourage social distancing.
 - Routes to access the pools and restrooms will be marked to allow for one-way traffic only.
 - Restroom sinks will be marked to encourage social distancing.
 - Lockers will not be available due to social distancing restrictions.
 - Pool passes/punch cards will not be offered to ensure compliance with attendance limitations.
 - Picnic tables will be spaced six feet apart.
 - The number of deck chairs will be reduced by 50 percent. Seating areas will be clearly marked to ensure proper spacing and appropriate social distancing. Patrons may bring their own chairs.
 - Markings will be in place to keep patrons a minimum of six feet apart while waiting to use the diving board, slides and concession stand.
 - Parent-Toddler swim time will not be offered as part of the 2020 HPAC schedule.
 - No groups will be allowed, including day camps, unless the attendees are individually registered via RecDesk.
 - Special events and rentals will not be offered at the HPAC in 2020.
- Swim lesson registration will begin Monday, June 29, and be offered entirely online. The cost is $40 for Wake Forest residents who reside within the town limits and $80 for non-Wake Forest residents. Payments can be made with debit card, MasterCard and Visa. Classes will be offered for preschoolers (ages 3-5), beginners (ages 6 and above) and residents with disabilities.

fully we have learned from them all. But we learn from talking to each other. Intelligent conversations, debates, until we can agree or at least compromise.

Slavery was a mistake. So was the upheaval and massacre of the Native American Indian. The Indian Removal Act ranks at the top of my list of mistreatments of people in the United States, but in the world, it's no comparison to the Holocaust.

The Greatest Generation fought for the freedom of the World from Hitler and Japan in World War II. American men going to war and the women going to work in factories to come together to fight an injustice.

You can't blame a 6-year-old American for what happened centuries ago, just as you can't blame a 6-year-old Japanese for Pearl Harbor and a young German for the Holocaust.

There are legitimate protestors with a strong message, but there are also paid instigators pushing an political agenda and the worst of them all, uneducated millennials who think raising their fists above their heads for a few hours before they go home to their parents' home and dye their hair purple and adjust their piercings as they admire their tattoos in their parents' master bathroom mirror.

This country will survive. No hypocrite governor, tweeting president, jackass party or manipulating media will destroy it.

They may make life inconvenient and scary at times, but they will not put an end to us.

All lives don't matter until black lives matter

Protestors were in Wake Forest for the third consecutive night trying to get their voices heard about systematic oppression and the Black Lives Matter movement. Maggie Allen, top photo, third from left, said she and two friends came Thursday, June 4, and on Saturday, June 6, as many as 22 showed up. "All lives can't matter until black lives matter," said Allen. "We will not stop making our voices heard until changes are made."

Members of this group also participated in the march that took place near downtown Wake Forest on Sunday, June 7.

Amir Watkins' mom didn't have to twist his arm to get him to come to the Taylor Street Sprayground on Saturday, but was worried she may have to twist it to get him to leave.

"Amir is fearless. He's only 4, but he is not afraid of the water," said his proud mom, Shanite Jones.

He has been going wide open since he got here, and I don't see him slowing down."

The Watkins were two of about 20 people enjoying the first day of the Taylor Street Sprayground, located on 416 N. Taylor St. at the Alston-Massenburg Center. The weather was perfect for the opening day which had been delayed due to concerns about COVID-19.

The park is free and open to the public. The sprayground will operate daily in two-hour sessions, then close 30 minutes for cleaning, Monday-Saturday from 10 a.m.-7:30 p.m. and Sundays from 1-8 p.m. The facility is scheduled to close for the season on Tuesday, Sept. 8.

Out of concern for public safety, Wake Forest Parks, Recreation & Cultural Resources has introduced the following measures as part of the facility's daily operations:

- Temporary fencing will be installed around the sprayground to control the entry and exit of visitors;

- For the purposes of contact tracing, all persons entering the sprayground must be signed in by staff;

- Seating areas will be clearly marked to ensure proper spacing and appropriate social distancing (patrons may bring their own chairs);

- Staff will enforce a maximum capacity of 16 people.

As the hot sun beamed down, it didn't slow Amir Watkins at all. His mom keeping watchful eye to make sure her son was respectful of the other kids using the sprayground.

"He is having so much fun. I guess this the park will become part of our daily routine."

Delay of game

Wake County holds off on high school sports

FROM WSJ STAFF REPORTS

Wake County high school sports won't resume next week, despite the N.C. High School Athletic Association ending the coronavirus dead period on June 15.

There is a target date for returning to high school sports activities in Wake County Schools on July 6, the first day after the NCHSAA summer dead period, but that is a best-case scenario.

The NCHSAA announced on Monday that it will allow schools to resume sports activities on June 15, but it left the option open to school districts to extend the dead period for its schools. Wake and Charlotte-Mecklenburg opted to delay resuming sports activities after the NCHSAA announcement.

"We have a committee that's working to review NCHSAA guidelines, but also come up with our own guidelines using the information from the NFHS, NCHSAA, NCDHHS and the governor. We will return when we are confident that we have a plan in place that has established protocols to keep our student-athletes and staff as safe as possible while participating," said Wake County Athletic Director Deran Coe.

NCHSAA guidance will consist of three phases, with the first phase beginning June 15. Strict restrictions are in place for phase one, including limited numbers, no sharing of equipment, and no contact.

Registrations for Wake Forest Parks & Recreation athletic leagues begin

FROM WSJ STAFF REPORTS

As the COVID-19 pandemic continues, the Wake Forest Parks, Recreation & Cultural Resources Department is taking a slow and cautious approach to resuming athletics programming. The coronavirus is expected to remain a threat for the foreseeable future, so the PRCR Department is working to balance health and safety concerns with public demand for resumed access to amenities and services.

Due to the ever-evolving situation surrounding COVID-19, PRCR-sponsored athletic programs are subject to change with limited notice. Wake Forest officials will continue to closely monitor updates and follow guidelines from the Wake County Health Department, N.C. Department of Health and Human Services and the Centers for Disease Control. These guidelines have been implemented in protocols established by the Town to address potential exposure to the coronavirus and protect our community and staff.

Youth Fall Baseball and Softball

Youth Fall Baseball and Softball registration is underway for boys ages 6-16 and girls ages 6-14 and will continue through Sunday, July 12. A participant's eligibility is determined by his or her age on April 30, 2020, and a birth certificate is required for new participants. The in-town registration fee is $60 and the out-of-town fee is $100.

Online registration is available. Team placement and draft information, along with additional registration details and league rules are also provided online and at the Wake Forest Town Hall, 301 S. Brooks St. Players in every league except "Rookie League" must participate in a draft to determine team placement. The Parks, Recreation and Cultural Resources Department will conduct drafts for each league in August and in July will contact all registrants with draft/place-ment information.

Team practices will begin in August and games will be played through mid-October.

Co-Rec Church Softball

Team registrations for Co-Rec Church Softball through Friday, July 31. Online registration is available. The entry fee is $550 per team, and the league is limited to participants ages 18 and older.

Beginning in mid-August, league games will be played primarily on Tuesday, Thursday and Friday evenings.

Anyone interested in participating who does not have a team can sign up as a free agent, then assigned to a team in need of players. To register as a free agent, visit wakeforestnc.gov, search "Free Agent" and complete the online registration form.

Adult Summer Co-Rec Kickball

Team registrations for Adult Summer Co-Rec Kickball through Tuesday, June 30. Online registration is available. The entry fee is $225 per team, and the league is limited to participants ages 18 and older.

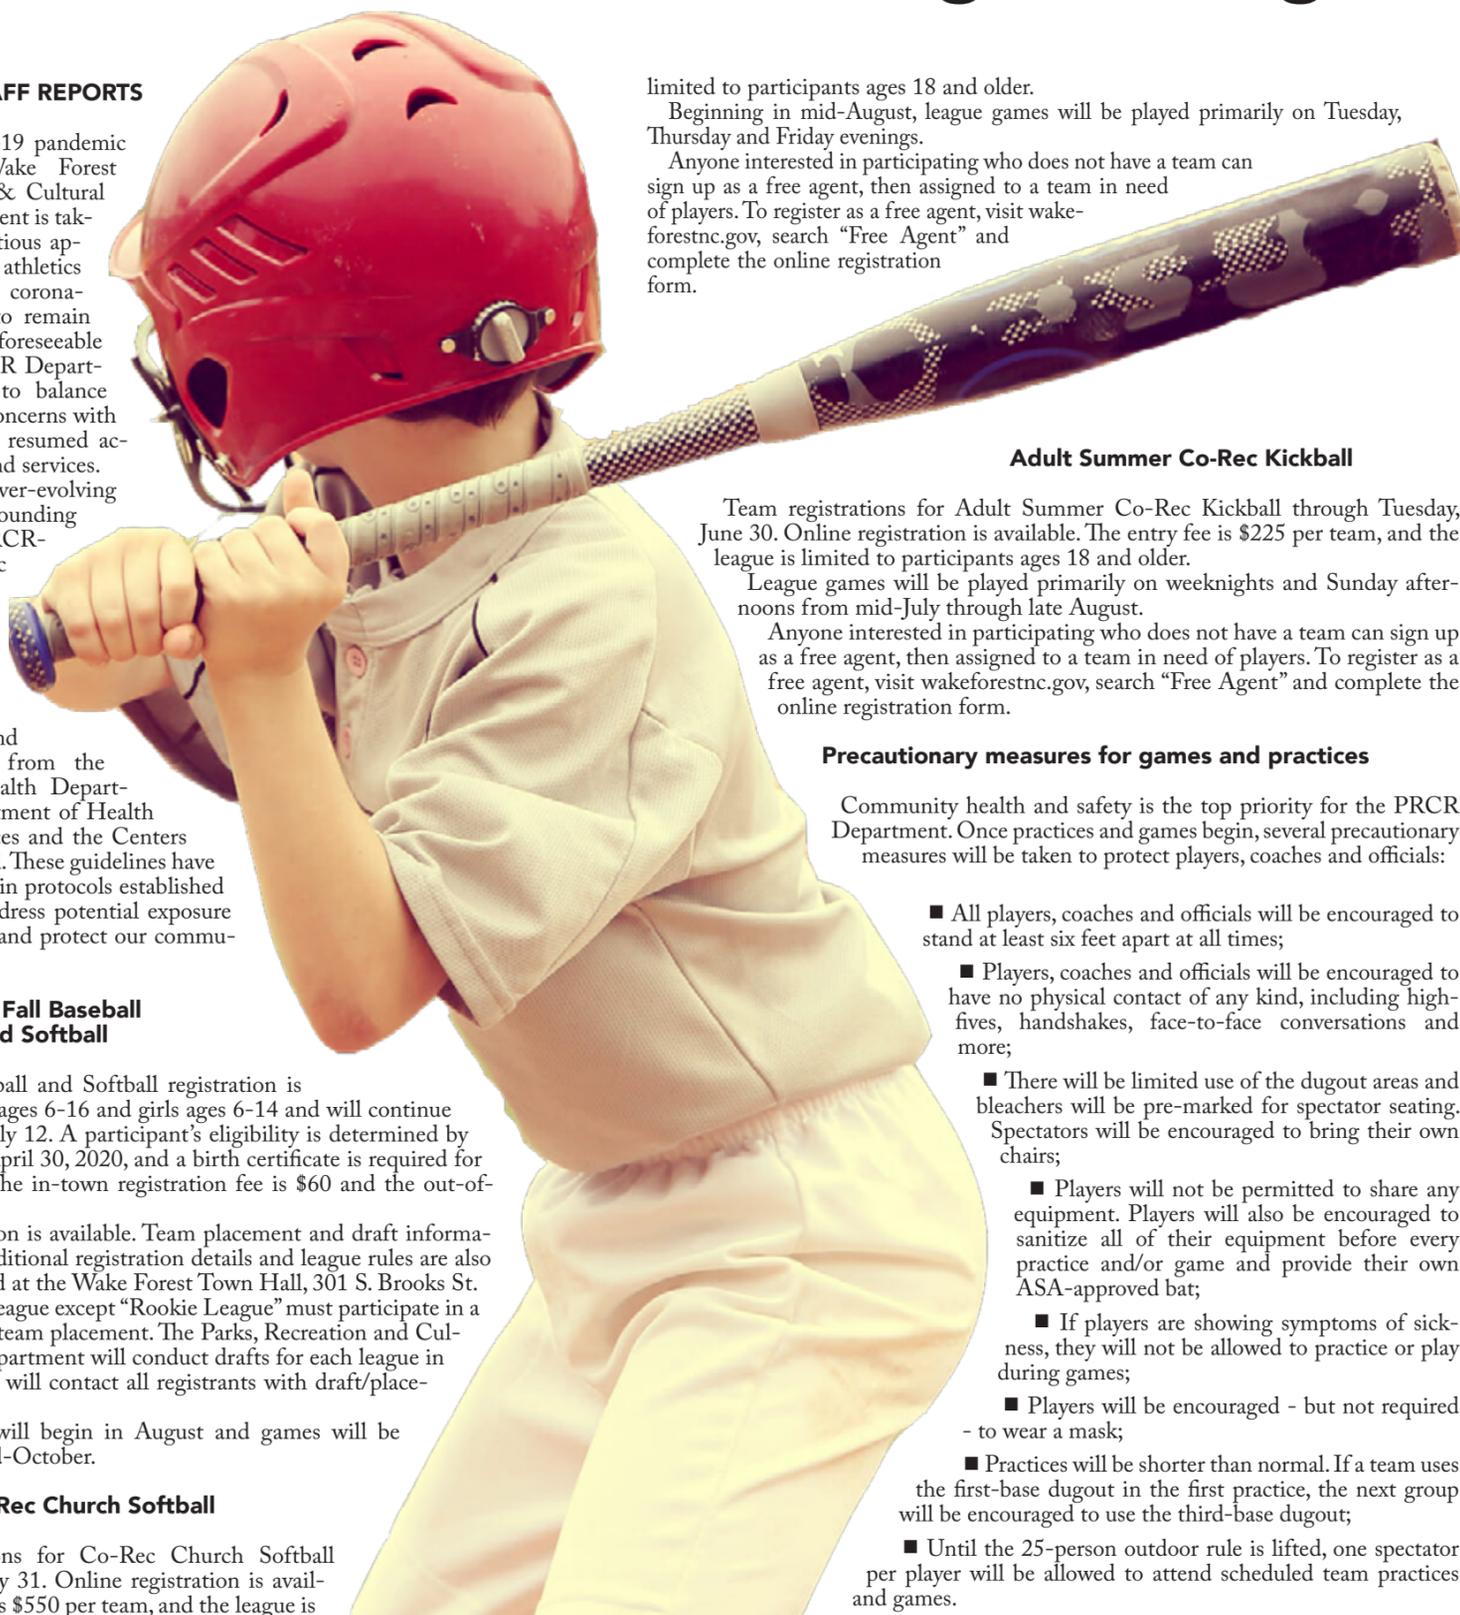

League games will be played primarily on weeknights and Sunday afternoons from mid-July through late August.

Anyone interested in participating who does not have a team can sign up as a free agent, then assigned to a team in need of players. To register as a free agent, visit wakeforestnc.gov, search "Free Agent" and complete the online registration form.

Precautionary measures for games and practices

Community health and safety is the top priority for the PRCR Department. Once practices and games begin, several precautionary measures will be taken to protect players, coaches and officials:

- All players, coaches and officials will be encouraged to stand at least six feet apart at all times;
- Players, coaches and officials will be encouraged to have no physical contact of any kind, including high-fives, handshakes, face-to-face conversations and more;
- There will be limited use of the dugout areas and bleachers will be pre-marked for spectator seating. Spectators will be encouraged to bring their own chairs;
- Players will not be permitted to share any equipment. Players will also be encouraged to sanitize all of their equipment before every practice and/or game and provide their own ASA-approved bat;
- If players are showing symptoms of sickness, they will not be allowed to practice or play during games;
- Players will be encouraged - but not required - to wear a mask;
- Practices will be shorter than normal. If a team uses the first-base dugout in the first practice, the next group will be encouraged to use the third-base dugout;
- Until the 25-person outdoor rule is lifted, one spectator per player will be allowed to attend scheduled team practices and games.

Hunger doesn't take a break

FROM WSJ STAFF REPORTS

More than 900,000 North Carolina students rely on the nutritious meals and snacks served during the school year through the School Breakfast, School Lunch, and Afterschool Meals programs.

Hunger doesn't take a summer break, especially this summer, when social distancing is necessary to help prevent the spread of the Coronavirus

For this summer, the North Carolina Department of Public Instruction has already enrolled 184 sponsors serving 2,718 sites. Last year, North Carolina's Summer Nutrition Programs served nearly 100,000 children per day state-wide. Summer nutrition programs can provide meals for children any time school is out. Meals are provided for children and adolescents ages 18 and younger.

Since N.C. closed to students on March 16, more than 30 million meals have been served through the Summer Nutrition Program's emergency feeding initiatives to support the state's COVID-19 public health response.

Local education agencies and community organizations serving as Summer Nutrition Program sponsors have been provided guidance regarding the requirements for personal hygiene, food safety and social distancing. The Guidelines for Ensuring Health and Safety for School Nutrition Staff and Children and Families Receiving School Nutrition Services were developed through a collaboration between the NCDPI and the N.C. Department of Health and Human Services; the guidelines incorporate guidance from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), the State Board of Education and Executive Orders from the Office of Governor.

To find free, healthy meals for children ages 18 and younger near you:

Text "FoodNC" to 877-877 for information in English or "COMIDA" to 877-877 for information in Spanish.

Call toll-free 1-866-3Hungry (1-866-348-6479) or 1-877-8Hambre (1-877-842-6273).

Utilize the No Kid Hungry North Carolina mapping tool at <http://nokid-hungrync.org/covid19>, or Visit the USDA's Summer Meal Site Finder, <https://www.fns.usda.gov/SummerFoodRocks>.

Meal sites may be located at schools, public housing centers, playgrounds, camps, parks, medical centers, faith-based facilities, libraries and other locations. Meals are served to eligible children at no cost. Registration and ID are not required.

Additional information regarding N.C. Summer Nutrition Programs may be found on the NCDPI, School Nutrition Division's website. Those interested in getting involved as sponsors, sites, activity providers or volunteers should contact the NCDPI Summer Nutrition Programs Manager Cynthia Ervin.

Homeschool students face COVID-19 restrictions head on to have a creative and memorable prom

BY JAY LAMM
editor@WSJ30.com

The Covid-19 pandemic wasn't going to stop this group of homeschooled friends from having a prom night. So on Saturday, June 13, they dressed in their finest and headed out to make memories.

Students from the Capital Christian Homeschool Program decided months ago the Coronavirus pandemic wasn't going to stop them from having a prom.

"Over the last couple of months we have been very cautious and stayed away from each other. Only getting together in groups of two or three, so we wouldn't get sick," said Kathryn Blevins.

"We wanted to make sure all of us could be together tonight for our prom."

Blevins said their prom was going to be a little different than a normal prom. They were dressed in tuxes and prom dresses, but there was nothing formal about their makeshift prom.

"We are going to take pictures, then get take out from the Burger Shop and eat it at Joyner Park, then dance," Blevins said.

Others chimed in Blevins had made a mixed tape for their Joyner Park Prom.

"We have all kinds of music on the tape. Everyone pitched in," said Colin Peterson.

The group said their local favorite band, Juniper Avenue, had to be on the tape and then Blevins announced Johnny Cash's "Ring of Fire" was also on the tape. That announcement got laughs from all the well dressed young ladies and men.

As the group headed off to get burgers, they walked down South White Street with smiles looking forward to making lemonade out of the lemons the pandemic had given them and memories that close friends can share for a lifetime.

Lennon read: "Returning hate for hate multiplies hate, adding deeper darkness to a night already devoid of stars. Darkness cannot drive out darkness; only light can do that. Hate cannot drive out hate, only love can do that."

The multi-colored, star-shaped balloons created a bright, dotted pattern sparkling in the sunlight and ascended slowly with cheers and applause just prior to the group setting off on an 8-mile march that took them to the outskirts of downtown and back to Taylor Street.

The group bypassed Town Hall and the Police Department. There was no police presence – only two patrol cars driving by with one officer each during the entire afternoon event.

Temperatures kept under 85 degrees, as about 80 or so people walked and chanted through the streets, picking up supporters, prompting drivers to honk their horns and pulling customers and business owners out to watch. There were dozens of different signs, T-shirts and chants — babies sleeping in strollers and one even lounged across her father's right shoulder.

"Say his name!" Hockaday maintained a steady call throughout the march on a bullhorn.

"George Floyd ... George Floyd ... George Floyd ... George Floyd," echoed.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The organizers plan more such events through the end of the year and beyond. See Facebook page Our WF Matters for more information.)

Department of Health and Human Services Secretary Mandy Cohen shared the guidance.

"Getting children back to school to learn is a high priority, but they must be able to do so in the safest way possible," said Cooper. "Every child, family and public school educator in North Carolina deserves strong protection to lower the risk of virus spread."

Schools are asked to plan for reopening under three scenarios – Plan A: Minimal Social Distancing, Plan B: Moderate Social Distancing, or Plan C: Remote Learning Only. N.C. DHHS, in consultation with the State Board of Education and Department of Public Instruction, will announce by July 1 which of the three plans should be implemented for schools to most safely reopen. The remaining plans may be needed if the state's COVID-19 metrics change over time.

Schools are required to create:

- Plan A: Minimal Social Distancing – Will be implemented assuming state COVID-19 metrics continue to stabilize and/or move in a positive direction. All requirements in this guidance apply to Plan A.

- Plan B: Moderate Social Distancing – Will be required if state COVID-19 metrics worsen and it is determined additional restrictions are necessary. All requirements in this guidance apply, with additional requirements in the Social Distancing and Minimizing Exposure section noted for Plan B only.

- Plan C: Remote Learning Only – Will be implemented if state COVID-19 metrics worsen significantly enough to require suspension of in-person instruction and the implementation of remote learning for all students, based on the remote learning plans required by Session Law 2020-3. The requirements listed in this guidance would not apply, as students and staff would not be gathering together in groups on school grounds.

School districts may choose to implement a more restrictive Plan but may not choose to implement a less restrictive Plan than established by NCDHHS, NCSBE, and NCDPI

- Opening schools will be possible if we keep working together to slow the spread of COVID-19. We will each need to do our part and practice the 3 Ws – Wear a cloth face covering. Wait 6 feet apart. Wash your hands frequently. These easy actions will have outsized impact in keeping viral spread low to in order to help get our children back to school," said Cohen.

The Public Health Toolkit was developed collaboratively by DHHS and DPI with input from a range of stakeholders across the state, including local superintendents, State Board of Education members, the Governor's Teacher Advisory Council, and members of the Governor's COVID-19 Education and Nutrition Working Group.

"We are working together to balance the need for all of our children to get back to school – especially children who rely on public schools for their education, health, safety and nutrition – while at the same time proceeding cautiously and deliberately to protect their health and safety," said Chairman Davis. "I know meeting these public health requirements will take a tremendous effort by our schools – but I also know we are doing the right thing and that our schools will rise to the challenge."

The StrongSchoolsNC Public Health Toolkit will be a companion to operational guidance under development by DPI that will offer strategies for public health guidance and cover other non-health areas for reopening planning, including scheduling, instructional practice and staff training.

The guidelines:

- Require students and others to be screened for illness before entering school.

- Requires floor markings to maintain social distance.

- Include sample screening symptom checklists in English and Spanish, a flow chart protocol for handling suspected or confirmed cases of COVID-19 and a checklist of infection control supplies schools may need.

Wearing cloth face coverings is strongly recommended but not required. Face covers should be used, according to the guidelines, by staff and older students when distancing is difficult.

The Toolkit will be updated as new health guidance is released by the CDC and additional resources are added.

Questions about the StrongSchoolsNC Public Health Toolkit (K-12) should be directed to StrongSchoolsNC@dhs.nc.gov (in English or in Spanish).

forward with additional openings and want to get back to the activities, I know they want to get their kids back to school. This is the way to do it ... to focus on these collective actions we can do."

The other eight counties that are seeing surges in North Carolina, along with Wake, are Mecklenburg, Durham, Johnston, Alamance, Guilford, Forsyth, Lee and Duplin.

Dr. Anthony Fauci, director of the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases, said in multiple news outlets over the weekend that "normalcy" in the United States is likely a year away, particularly with states seeing increases in cases and hospitalizations.

Within the United States, Florida, California and Texas reported all-time daily highs over the weekend.

The Centers for Disease Control predicted six states (Arizona, Arkansas, Hawaii, North Carolina, Utah and Vermont) will see higher death tolls over the next month.

There are 8.1 million cases of the virus reported worldwide, with 438,583 deaths. The United States has topped the 2 million mark at 2.1 million cases, with 118,282 deaths, as of Monday.

Symptoms of Coronavirus

may appear two to 14 days after exposure, and a person may be infected and can spread the virus without symptoms.

Symptoms can include:

- Fever or chills
- Cough
- Shortness of breath or difficulty breathing
- Headaches
- Fatigue
- Muscle or body aches
- New loss of taste or smell
- Sore throat
- Congestion or runny nose
- Nausea or vomiting
- Diarrhea

Look for emergency warning signs for COVID-19.

If someone is showing any of these signs, seek emergency medical care immediately: trouble breathing, persistent pain or pressure in the chest, new confusion, inability to stay awake, bluish lips or face.

Residents can be tested at two sites in Wake Forest, according to the DHHS website: Advance Care, 1964 S. Main St., by appointment and physician referral; and Heritage Urgent Care and Primary Care, 620 Dr. Calvin Jones Highway, #212, appointment and screening required.
